The Spirit of Giving

Just a few days remain before the Times closes off its appeal for the Children of India Fund.

At the start of the campaign, the hope was expressed that we might raise $10,000. If readers will respond generously over the Christmas season—as they have up to now—this target may be achieved.

The Times does not attempt to "promote" this campaign. No special events are staged; no entertainments, auctions, raffles or bingo games are held.

Rather, we try simply to tell the story of the need, believing that, in this land of prosperity and abundance, we ought to pause at least once a year to think of our fellow human beings across the seas to whom a cup of milk is a genuine blessing.

Thereafter, we depend simply on the goodwill and generosity of our readers.

We hope that you will find it in your hearts to send us a contribution—however small—so that on Christmas Day we will be able to report to Dr. Hirschmanova and the Unitarian Service Committee that Victorians have "done their bit."

THEY NEED A HAND

Waiting for the helping hand you can extend through the Times Fund are two typical Indian wifis. Nothing you can do is too much for these children and nothing you can give too little.

CHILDREN OF INDIA

The Setting Sun His Only Glitter

All over Victoria lights and decorations are going up on homes, offices and public buildings.

They turn houses into fairylands of pleasure that never fail to delight our children.

But for millions in India there are no lights and no decorations at any time of the year, and the only color in a child's day is the sunset.

HE DIDN'T WATCH

The next day the USC worker returned to the village and was met by the boy.

"I was so happy," said the lad, "that for the first time in my life I did not watch the sunset."

This gives some idea of the difference in values between India and Canada—and how much we can do there with a little.

The cost of replacing two or three bulbs in the string of lights outside your home can supply milk for a whole year.

LOOK DIM

The brightest light on the finest tree in Victoria would look dim to a starving Indian boy when placed alongside a battered tin cup full to the brim with sweet, nourishing milk.

By saving these lives we can implant a seed of friendship in thousands of young hearts. They will grow up to become great leaders of their country and eventually the cups of milk may blossom into strong bonds of friendship between Canada and India.

Donations can be taken or mailed to the Times' Children of India Fund, 2631 Douglas. They may also be left at the Bank of Montreal, main branch, Douglas and Yates.

U.S. Warns of Danger to UN As Russ Veto Goa Ceasefire

36-Hour Battle Seems Over

BELGAUM (Reuters)—India today claimed the surrender of all three Portuguese territories on its west coast after a 36-hour invasion but said one port in Goa was still holding out.

But in Lisbon, a Portuguese official said troops in the Goan capital of Nova Goa (Panjim) and other places in all three of Portugal's territories still were fighting.

As India began preparing a military government of the captured territories, a defence ministry spokesman said the port of Marmagao in Goa, the largest territory, still was resisting.

Reports reaching this town near the Goa border said Indian troops in the capital of Nova Goa were rounding up Portuguese remnants and stragglers.

The defence ministry said "there may be some pockets here and there, but generally the Portuguese have surrendered. The whole of Goa has come under our administration".

Marmagao is Goa's main deepwater harbor opposite Nova Goa.

Earlier, a defence ministry statement said the invasion operation ended with the surrender of Portuguese troops in Goa, Daman and Diu.

CASUALTIES LIGHT

The defence ministry said eight Indian soldiers were killed in the entire operation, some were wounded, and all available indications were that Portuguese casualties also were light.

More than 1,000 Portuguese troops laid down their arms and others were continuing to surrender, the defence ministry said.

It added that "roads were heavily mined, bridges and culverts destroyed and these were the only delaying factors."

The Portuguese colonial administration had already collapsed when the Indian armed forces entered the occupied territories yesterday.

"Everywhere the civil population not only warmly welcomed our troops but also rendered all possible assistance to them."

Maj.-Gen. Kenneth Candeth said he was assuming responsibility as military governor of Goa on behalf of the Indian government "of all territories which were formerly Portuguese possessions in India."

SETTLEMENT SOUGHT

Dutch Offer to Talk New Guinea Situation

THE HAGUE (Reuters)—The Netherlands today reiterated willingness to start negotiations with Indonesia on Dutch New Guinea following a renewed call for "liberation" of the territory by Indonesian President Sukarno.

A foreign office spokesman said discussions could begin as soon as the parties agreed on a basis for them.

"In the procedure to arrive at a constructive settlement of the future of New Guinea, a phase of negotiations is very probable," the spokesman said.

The defence ministry said "there may be some pockets here and there, but generally the Portuguese have surrendered. The whole of Goa has come under our administration".

WE WERE CORRECT, OTHERS WRONG—NEHRU

NEW DELHI (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru said today the swiftness of the military seizure of Portuguese Goa, Daman and Diu with few casualties "showed the correctness of the Indian assessment of the situation."

Nehru said critics of India in the United Nations were "obviously ignorant of the facts now as well as in the last dozen years or more."

Sukarno called for hoisting of the red-and-white Indonesian flag in West New Guinea and the foiling of Dutch plans to turn the territory into independent state called Papua.

A spokesman said the British government has no commitment to give military support to the Dutch if that disrupted South Pacific territory is attacked.

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y.—Ernest Kirk, a stock-broker, received this letter:

"Dear Mr. Stock Man: I heard Mom tell Dad she would like a stock for Christmas. So if you have an old used one around could I have it for Mom? Find my dollar to pay for it."

It was signed by Meg McMorrow, aged 8. A dollar was enclosed.

Kirk mulled it over. Then he sent her a share of General Foods to the girl, along with her dollar. General Foods closed on the New York Stock Exchange Monday at $93.75.

CLEVELAND (AP)—City policemen or firemen who have trouble seeing their shoelaces—much less bending to them—have been warned they will have to take off weight. Safety director John McCormick said Monday that men who are markedly overweight and don't do anything about it may face departmental charges.

PORSCHEMOUTH, England—Fifty anxious brides-to-be chorused a sigh of relief today as the British aircraft carrier Victorious dropped a tardy anchor in this naval port.

Aboard were 50 grooms-to-be.

Most of them became engaged 11 months ago, just before the Victorious put out to sea.

The carrier should have returned to Portsmouth last summer. First the Iraq-Kuwait crisis delayed her. Then she was ordered to Africa to help Kenya's flood victims.

As the Victorious steamed in the waiting 50 came down to welcome their sailors home.

One of the sailors said all the weddings will be held before Christmas.

"They'd better be," shouted one girl.

VELBERT, West Germany—Language difficulties recently put a high-ranking African diplomat to work in a local lime quarry.

Officials of the quarry said the immaculately dressed diplomat came to Velbert to discuss quarrying possibilities in his homeland. When he arrived, he misread a sign in German and entered the labor office instead of the directors' bureau.

A foreman plopped a protective steel helmet on his head, told him to grab a pick and led him into the dusty filled pits where African apprentices, imported to relieve a labor shortage, were learning the skills of the trade.

Two hours later, the directors got a call from the pits. One of the apprentices refused to work, insisting he had come to discuss the business, not to learn it.

They retrieved the visitor, brushed him off and then talked about African lime.

Nehru on Peace

'LITTLE WAR NO LESS WAR'

By United Press International

Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru has for years spoken for peace and against aggression. These are his words:

"You cannot draw the sword at every non-essential. That is absurd." (NBC's Meet the Press, Nov. 12, 1961.) "...the admission of the People's Republic of (Communist) China in the (UN) Security Council is necessary to bring the Korean conflict to a prompt and peaceful conclusion . . ." (Statement condemning North Korean Communist invasion of South Korea, June 25, 1950.)

"The fact that a war is a little war does not make it less of a war." (Aug. 18, 1955.)

"Profoundly shocked . . . this aggression (must) be halted and foreign troops withdrawn from Egyptian territory . . . naked aggression." (Letter to UN secretary-general protesting Anglo-French Suez invasion, Nov. 1, 1956.)

"We see in Hungary today human dignity and freedom outraged and the force of modern arms used to suppress peoples and to gain political objectives." (Speech condemning Russian intervention in the Hungarian uprising, Nov. 5, 1956.)

"We do not propose to have a military alliance with any country, come what may." (To parliament, May 4, 1959.)

". . . negotiate, negotiate and negotiate to the bitter end." (Answering parliamentary critics demanding that India break off relations over Red China's incursions, Dec. 21, 1959.)

"It is vitally important that the deterioration resulting from . . . collapse does not lead to a further worsening of the international situation, otherwise the cold war will intensify and the outbreak of terrible war — an unfathomable catastrophe — made possible." (Cairo, May 20, 1960.)

"Cuba should be allowed to work out its own destiny." (Parliament speech condemning U.S. aid to Cuban invaders, April 20, 1961.)

"War cannot solve any problem . . . (I hope that) men will adjust their minds to the idea of peace." (Mexico City, Nov. 17, 1961.)

"I am free to confess to this house that my soul rejects war anywhere. That is the training I received throughout my life, and I cannot get rid of it at the age of 72." (To parliament, after his Nov. 20 return from the United States and Mexico.)

New Oceanic Mystery Killing Off Sockeye

BELLINGHAM, Wash. (AP) — Unprecedented and little understood conditions affecting fish as they swim out to sea have killed millions of sockeye salmon, a fisheries official said Monday.

Lloyd A. Royal, director of the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission, said the disaster would be felt in sockeye runs of British Columbia's Fraser River through 1963.

The commission meets here today, and is expected to call for expanded oceanographic research on the phenomenon.

"We place the blame on a set of ocean conditions without precedent in the fishery," Royal said.

"We have not measured these conditions. We do not fully understand them. But we know they exist."

Red China Supports India's Goa Action

TOKYO (AP) — Red China's government today announced support for India's invasion of Portuguese Goa.

Radio Peking announced the government had issued a statement "supporting the Indian government in recovering Goa."

This contrasted with an editorial in the official Communist Chinese newspaper Ta Kung Pao, which called the invasion an attempt by Prime Minister Nehru of India to regain his sagging prestige among nations of the African-Asian bloc.

Ta Kung Pao, however, had upheld India's right to recover

BCP Meeting Turns Down Sale of Shares at $38

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Power Corporation shareholders voted overwhelmingly Monday in favor of capital distribution of $87,890,000 and against selling their shares to the B.C. government.

At a special general meeting 99.4 per cent favored a general distribution of $18.70 a share. Turned down by 96.3 per cent was a resolution to accept the government's offer of $38 each for B.C. Power shares.

Distribution will be made to shareholders of record Dec. 13. The money represents the major part of $110,985,045 paid to the corporation by the provincial government as compensation for the takeover of the B.C. Electric Company Aug. 1.

In the legislation under which the B.C. Electric Company was expropriated last August, the Provincial Government set the $110,000,000 price as compensation to the corporation for B.C. Electric . . . the corporation's major dollar-earning asset.

At the same time, the government offered to purchase the entire assets of B.C. Power Corporation—a federally-incorporated company which cannot be expropriated by Victoria—for an additional $69,000,000.

The total payment offered—$180,000,000—would represent $38 a share of the corporation's common stock.

BRITAIN DENIES HINT OF PULLOUT FROM UN

LONDON (UPI)—A Foreign Office spokesman denied press reports today that the foreign secretary, the Earl of Home, has hinted Britain may leave the United Nations.

"He has taken Lord Home's comments out of context. The assertion in the reports simply is not true," the spokesman said.

A London newspaper, the Evening Standard, said Home publicly hinted at withdrawal from the world body.

The Foreign Office spokesman said the "false" reports apparently were based on Home's statement in the House of Lords Monday explaining why Britain was continuing to support the United Nations.

Driver Sets Brake On Loaded Bus, Dies

From Times News Services VANCOUVER — The driver of a crowded bus put on the vehicle's brake before he collapsed and died at the wheel Monday.

The bus carrying 60 passengers was stopped on a red light when 33-year-old Clifford Bush died.

Witnesses said it appeared he felt an attack coming on and made sure the brake was set.

MORE DOUKS COMMITTED

NELSON — Three Freedoms Doukhobors were committed to higher court here Monday for trial in connection with widespread terrorism in the British Columbia Kootenay district.

Nick Repin of the nearby Freedemite colony of Krestovka was committed on a charge of unlawful possession of explosives.

R.C.M.P. told the hearing they found six sticks of dynamite in Repin's barn.

Earlier Monday Freedemites Fred Davidoff and Tim Jmaeff were committed for trial.

RARE OPERATION

Meanwhile, Fanny has her first look at city life through a hospital window.

DEPORTATION LIFTED

A deportation order against Mrs. Frances Maloney of Vancouver has been suspended a second time for a six-month period, the immigration department at Ottawa said today.

Mrs. Maloney was released from Oakalla prison last June where she had been serving a six-month sentence for drug possession. A United Kingdom citizen, she was subject to deportation on grounds that she was a landed immigrant convicted of a criminal offence.

Mrs. Maloney has been married twice and has five children, two of them born in Vancouver following her second marriage.

The Broken Image

REGARDLESS OF WHAT provocation there may have been, and regardless of the outcome of the fighting, India has lost heavily by its armed invasion of Goa and the other two Portuguese colonies on the Indian coast.

The sudden move, even though heralded by long controversy, took the world by surprise.

Here was a country which brought into international affairs the tradition of Mahatma Gandhi—peacefulness, passive resistance, tolerance, negotiation rather than force. It was a tradition which was continued by Mr. Nehru, and although he had departed somewhat vigorously from it in his quarrel with Pakistan over Kashmir, he had become known in the councils of the world as a man to whom force was abhorrent and to be avoided.

When other nations were in dispute, it was India which counselled compromise and brotherly love. Because of this, India had achieved a position of influence in world affairs. India was the nation whose upright and dispassionate approval was sought by East and West. India was the nation to whom the less developed countries of Africa and Asia looked for impartial judgment and moral guidance. India was one of the few countries against whom the Communists could not launch routine accusations of war-mongering, imperialism and aggression.

All these positions India has seriously imperilled, if not irretrievably lost by its invasion of Goa.

It is not enough to say, as Mr. Nehru says, that "Portugal did not leave us any alternative," or that "it was no pleasure for us to take arms against Portugal." Something more was expected of a nation which had set itself above the use of force, or at least India had led the world to expect something more.

Now that image has been shattered. And while it may be difficult to arouse much sympathy for Portugal—whose shocking conduct in colonial Angola is known to the world—it is much harder to condone India's action.

A tragic error has been made, and no doubt is being watched with intense interest by Red China, looming large on India's disputed northern frontier.

Goa may have been an uncomfortable thorn in India's side. The fear now is that it may have been turned into a virulent infection.

To Be Read With Red Glasses

SHORTLY AFTER ITS APPEARANCE in Moscow newspapers, the full text of the interview President Kennedy gave to Soviet editor Alexei Azhubel was reprinted in the Peking Peoples Daily, the Chinese Communist Party newspaper.

Such publication reflects a recent trend in Red China's treatment of the news. Other information—both sides of the Sino-Indian border dispute and the Soviet-Albanian feud—have been given to the people. They are encouraged to study issues from different angles to arrive at a "comprehensive truth."

This is a procedure which might well be applauded by countries devoted to a free press. But there is a certain element in the Peking Peoples Daily which must raise Western eyebrows. Accompanying the text on the Kennedy interview was an editorial on the "nonsense mouthed" by the American leader.

The interview, said the editorial, "laid bare completely United States imperialism's rabid ambition for world conquest," the Kennedy peace proposals "constitute a demand for the surrender of people of the whole world to United States imperialism . . . and complete liquidation of all countries of the socialist camp."

Every newspaper has the right to its own editorial opinion. At the same time, to Westerners who have read the text of Mr. Kennedy's interview, the Peking Peoples Daily seems to be telling its readers that the words of the interview do not mean what they say. Their meaning, the Chinese newspaper states, is only what the Peking Peoples Daily twists them into meaning. Read the story, says the Red Chinese journalistic mouthpiece. Then color the picture and make sure it's colored red.

Example in Trail

OOTHER CITIES IN BRITISH Columbia and throughout Canada might well join safety authorities who have congratulated Trail on its excellent highway achievement.

A special procedure was followed in the B.C. town the other day to remind residents that they had completed seven years without a highway fatality—a record unique on the continent for towns of more than 10,000 inhabitants.

Here is unmistakable evidence supporting the old argument that, in most cases, highway accidents don't have to happen. Given sharp attention to safety practices, and close observance of laws drafted to protect motorists and pedestrians, it is possible to avoid the tragedy reflected in shocking death totals from car accidents elsewhere.

Trail sets an example and proves a point. To draw attention to its record, the motorists of that city drove the other day with their lights on. May the lights keep shining.

How to Sour Sweet Auburn

IN A CONTEST WHICH PROMISES as much heartache as a baby show—for the losers—the New York office of the British Travel Association is determining "What is Britain's prettiest village."

People in Britain nominated 300. That number has been reduced to a dozen. Pictures of the dozen finalists have been prepared, and Americans, after viewing the pictures, will pick the winner.

This seems, on the surface, an excellent promotion to stimulate American interest in and visits to the attractive communities off the beaten path in the English countryside.

But is it wise in the light of current touchiness in Britain toward Americans? Only one village can win, 299 must be disappointed.

Add one more picture to the twelve selected by the British Travel Association—a picture of the village inn in all but one of 300 hamlets where the "regulars" are discussing American taste in English villages.

Go Ahead, Eat the Daisies

A REPORT FROM THE UNITED Nations Food and Agricultural Organization fisheries division describes the manatee as "a large, bosomy mammal with paddle-like forefeet, no hind feet, and a broad, rounded bottom."

This, it is explained, is the creature believed to be responsible in some quarters for the mermaid myths.

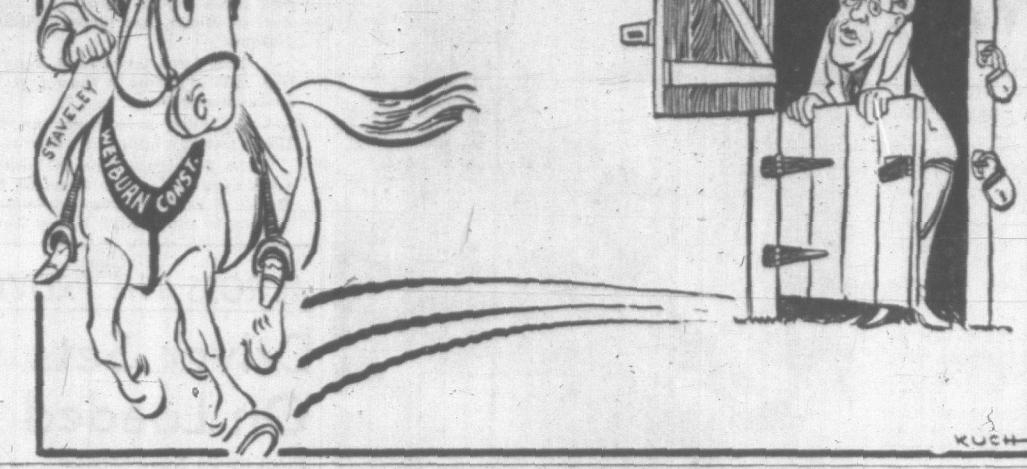

Now the manatee is moving out of legend into the field of science and, suggest some experts, may be used to clear weed-clogged waterways in the world. The manatee—bless its vegetarian habits—dotes on water weeds. The over-stuffed water nymph is capable of eating enough of the weed, which makes some canals almost impassable to boats, to clear a passage 22 feet wide and 1,600 yards long in 17 weeks.

The proposed exploitation of the manatee seems an act of kindness to the creature and a work of practical value to man. This beats Victoria's practice of letting widgeon keep the winter grass trim at Beacon Hill Park and Oak Bay golf links.

But there's a catch. The manatee is all but extinct. There just aren't enough of them in the world to clear out all the weed-choked waterways which need attention.

At no charge to the United Nations, we offer an alternative. Let the Food and Agricultural Association buy a few wet suits, teach selected domestic goats skin-diving techniques and turn them loose. If that doesn't work, there's always the widgeon.

Woefully Misinformed About the Aims

FOR friends of American co-operation with the Common Market, the testimony of Mr. George Ball before the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations last week was a disappointment. A great opportunity to clear away many public misconceptions was missed.

Mr. Ball, the new undersecretary, has been greatly overworked and he came before the committee last week without a prepared statement. His improvised remarks added little to the public debate.

This is a vast pity, for the president's objectives are still obscure to many sections of the country. No one is better qualified to deal with these criticisms than Mr. Ball.

On Saturday I was invited to take part in a closed meeting in Cleveland attended by 30 industrial leaders of the midwestern states so that I could join a distinguished panel of experts in explaining what the Common Market portends for the United States and what the objectives of the new American trade program will be.

Since the meeting was private, nothing can be said about the discussion. But it can be reported that these industrialists, representing firms with an impressive percentage of America's export trade, are woefully misinformed about the president's aims.

The campaign of education will have to be more vigorous and more sustained if the public debate is to pay due heed to the administration's program and is not to be deceived by a malignant caricature floated by critics of the president.

Mr. Ball told the Boggs committee that he cannot discuss the draft trade legislation now because further changes will be made in it and the proposed bill must be reviewed by representative leaders of Congress, from both parties, before it is given its final approval. He expected the president to outline the broad purposes of the trade program in the state of the union message in January, with the proposed trade legislation being sent to Congress in a special message a few days later.

He devoted a large part of his testimony to a defence of the interests of Japan and Latin America in dealing with the Common Market to end its discrimination against Japanese goods, and he wanted the European countries to avoid giving preferential treatment to imports from Africa over imports from Latin America.

He pledged the Kennedy administration to give the highest priority to both these objectives in all its negotiations with the Common Market.

Mr. Ball, who is a leading advocate of the political advantages of working with the Common Market, wisely gave only incidental emphasis to this side of his case.

He concentrated instead on trying to meet the fears of American business that it will be subject to unfair competition from lower wage industries in Europe. Far more will have to be said on this point before the president can feel assured that the way has been profitably opened for him in Congress to submit his detailed proposals.

Balance of Payments: Balance of Power

ANGLO-German talks on "support costs" are likely to begin again very soon, according to official sources here, following talks between the defence ministers of both countries this week. Support costs is the British term for the upkeep of the British Army of the Rhine.

It costs a lot. Quite apart from sterling expenditure, Britain has paid £70 million this year in German marks for the upkeep of the 30,000 strong BAOR—5,000 short of its NATO promise—and expects to spend £75 million in D-marks next year. The British problem is one of foreign currency.

The argument crops up every year and is a nagging sore in the relations between the two countries. The British want to get it settled once and for all, and are, I understand, prepared to get tough about it. The Germans want to get it settled too, and they reckon they have the better case.

Jolly Man

Herr Franz-Josef Strauss, the West German defense minister, is a jolly man, and he likes America. On his recent visit to the United States, he signed arms orders that even Dr. Adenauer didn't know about until Strauss got back.

The British estimate that if they had 10 per cent of the orders Herr Strauss signed up for in the U.S. they would earn £25 million a year, and much of this bedeviling foreign exchange question would be ended.

Back come the Germans with the argument that the British don't produce the guns they want, and that their delivery dates are indefinite. The British deny the first, admit the latter. But, they say, if Bonn would make a definite commitment for British arms—over a number of years—the British arms industry could be geared to this and delivery would be made earlier.

Outside the American-British argument on tactics—nuclear or conventional retaliation, with the British, lacking manpower, preferring nuclear, and the Americans, having the bombs, preferring conventional—this battle between the Germans and the British over hard cash is the most disruptive force within NATO.

A scarcely disguised leak from Bonn's defence ministry emerged in the West German press this week, to the effect that if Britain did not get from Germany the foreign currency support she needed she would withdraw "two of her four divisions" in Germany.

The British Embassy here does not officially deny this report because if West Germany refused totally to help Britain in this intra-NATO argument, London would have the right to withdraw troops.

Britain has been issued what is called by NATO a "certificate of need"—the kind of document, issued by a worthy organization, that a tramp might take round from door to door. The obvious door is Germany's—a hard one to open. But if Germany does not ultimately agree in some measure to assist, she will be going against the mutual agreements of the NATO powers.

Careful Calculation

A careful calculation by the British shows that over the past several years Britain's annual foreign exchange deficit is pretty well what she pays out in D-marks for the BAOR, whereas West Germany's foreign exchange surplus can be accounted for by what NATO troops spend in Germany.

The problem is, therefore, say the British, "structural," and needs a final settlement.

It isn't easy for the British army in Germany to earn D-marks. A Scots pipe band played at the wedding last week in Berlin of Prince Friedrich Karl of Prussia and Lady Hermoine Roberts and his reported payment was a glass of whisky which he drank at one gulp. It's as hard as that to earn D-marks.

Neither German nor British officials here fear disaster. Their attachment to NATO is, I believe, more adhesive than that to filthy lucre. But lucre plays a stern hand, and there are going to be some hard arguments—perhaps for the British some hard lessons—before NATO settles down to be a real partnership.

Pets for Gifts

Christmas with its gift-giving comes on space. I am putting in a plea for the puppies and kittens who will be going to new homes. Many of them, I am afraid, much too young.

For a few days the new pet may be overdone with attention and too much handling but as the novelty wears off and other matters are found more interesting the living Christmas gift may find itself neglected and almost forgotten. I have seen this happen so many times.

May I urge parents to refuse requests for living pets unless they are sure that there is a real love for animal in the child and the parents are prepared to undertake that they themselves will assume the care of the little creature. I would ask all those who intend giving live gifts first to see if they would be welcome; second, to consider what kind of home awaits such gifts. Like all young things they call for kindly patience and training and if neither is forthcoming their outlook is bleak indeed.

Christmas which should be a happy time for all is often sad and sometimes tragic for the many pets who will be finding new homes. They are only babies these puppies and kittens, and if lonely and bewildered and probably cold, they cry at night, or need training. Please have understanding and help them to get adjusted and feel they are among friends in their new and strange life and surroundings.

MRS. LILIAN F. HEYWOOD.

Irresponsible Hunters

In all the publicity about hunting accidents I have failed to see any comment on a very serious result of irresponsibility in the hunting field. I refer to the large and ever-growing number of animals and birds that are unnecessarily slaughtered or injured by the hooligan fringe. I think the number of birds that are protected but which are shot nevertheless every year, is growing because the statistics available to this Society would appear to indicate this. Certainly the number of animals, including domestic cattle, shot and wounded is only prevented from growing by the increasing number of "no shooting" signs that are being posted by farmers.

The suggestions of protective clothing, eye-sight tests, etc. are simply illusions and will not prevent either the unnecessary slaughter of animals and birds or for that matter the annual kill of humans.

The answer to irresponsibility is prosecution. Whilst I realize that prosecution under the present law may be difficult, nevertheless this is the proper course of action. It would be wrong to penalize the entire shooting public by forcing it to dress rather like sartorial Christmas trees festooned with binoculars and telescopes in an attempt to curb the irresponsible fringe. If the law is not adequate at the present time it should be altered in such a way that irresponsibility in the hunting field can be dealt with by proper process of law.

WASHINGTON:

Bigest Budget

By JOSEPH ALSOP

AT the Kennedy administration's very first meeting on budgetary problems, the new President's close adviser, Theodore Sorensen, opened the proceedings with a warning to the eager, newly established economists.

"Boys," he said. "We've got to balance the budget, or at least we've got to seem to. You'll have to bear in mind that the President's reputation matters more than your reputations as economists."

Since that occasion, nearly a year has passed. The seemingly balanced Kennedy revision of the seemingly balanced Eisenhower budget of January 1961 has in fact resulted in a budget deficit of about $7 billion. But this unbalance (if you believe the economists) so sternly warned by Sorensen or some other, more mystical cause (if you regard these economists as dubious dreamers) has also produced a gratifying result.

The moderate but alarmingly obstinate depression that gripped the country in 1960 has been replaced by a moderate but still genial boom. Hence the Kennedy budget of January 1962 is still climbing, from $504 billion in 1960, to $520 billion in 1961, towards a pleasingly whopping estimate of $570 billion for 1962.

Truly Balanced

Gerald Waring

... REPORTING

OTTAWA—Prime Minister Diefenbaker's explanation that we're behind the United Nations in what it's doing in Katanga wasn't a very bold statement against the backdrop of Anglo-American differences over Katanga.

However, the PM was being cautious. And, I think, rightly so. It was the part of wisdom to avoid taking sides in what after all will likely be an ephemeral issue: whether the UN should seek an immediate cease-fire in the Congo province, as Britain argued, or whether it should pursue its political objectives with military force in accord with the mandate that U Thant had received from the General Assembly, as Washington argued it should.

The PM's comment meant this: we support the UN's action in Katanga but not necessarily the U.S. position in the Anglo-American dispute, despite the apparent identity of the UN and the U.S. positions. This is a distinction without a difference that should be welcomed in Whitehall.

Any Canadian government is likely to be in an embarrassing and difficult position when sharp policy differences arise between London and Washington. The present government is particularly sensitive; the Conservative party has many supporters who are emotionally pro-British. The Tory party gave birth to the fulsome cry of "Ready, aye ready." And recently the Diefenbaker government has risked alienating some of its Anglophile support by its attitude towards London on the issue of British membership in the European Common Market.

On the other hand, over the years Ottawa has had a number of important policy differences with London. In 1899 Sir Wilfrid Laurier balked at sending troops to South Africa. In 1922 Mackenzie King balked at sending troops to Turkey. In 1956 Louis St. Laurent balked at supporting, to say nothing of participating in, the British intervention in the Egyptian-Israeli hostilities.

Canada's vital interests have frequently not been identical with Britain's, and they are not in the Katanga situation. Canada does not have to deal with Sir Roy Welensky over the future of the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland; Britain does. Canada is not applying to Paris and Brussels for admission to the ECM—capitals that favor Katanga's cause—but Britain is.

But, on the other hand, it is not incumbent on Canada to court the ill will of Brussels and Paris while Britain is trying to persuade them to allow Canada and other Commonwealth countries continued low-tariff access to the British market after Britain joins the ECM.

While the lesson is not as clear cut as it might be, because of Canada's obvious interest in not giving offence to Belgium and France, the incident does buttress Foreign Minister Green's stated apprehension that ECM membership would affect the policy leadership that Britain could give the Commonwealth.

The long-range objective of the European economic tieup is political union, and in working towards that goal all members must be willing to make policy accommodations for the others. Accommodations by Britain could draw her further from Canada, and as the Canadian ministers said at Accra, could jeopardize her position as leader of the Commonwealth.

And at very least, such accommodations could increase demands for the kind of thin-cemannship that Diefenbaker demonstrated on the Katanga question.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

Push-Button Christmas

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Like any other normal, red-blooded, misguided American boy, I have always pictured Santa Claus' workshop as being populated by elves, gnomes, leprechauns and other cheerful little figures.

Never, even under the influence of eggnog, did I ever fancy that Santa's helpers would one day be replaced by Univac machines and other electronic computers.

But such a trend has been established this year, and it is only a question of time, I fear, until we will be celebrating a fully automated Christmas.

The fact that automation has reared its head amid our yuletide activities was brought to my attention when I dropped in on the National Computer Conference being held here this week.

Delegates to the conference are honing up on the latest developments in the data processing industry, including new ways that electronic brains have taken over the functions of the human cerebrum.

A conference official informed me that some of the more progressive department stores are using computers this season as a gift suggestion service to Christmas shoppers.

Let us say that you are stumped over what to give your rich old uncle Egbert.

By DICK WEST

You go to a store and fill out a card listing as much information about him as you dare put in writing.

The card then is fed into a computer and presto—out comes a list of about 50 items that theoretically would make suitable gifts for someone fitting uncle Egbert's description.

In a manner of speaking then, even ideas are now coming pre-packed and gift-wrapped. I trust that the computers perform this service while softly humming a few bars of "Jingle Bells."

The conference official also showed me a toy computer that is on the market this year. It sells for about $6 and works almost like a real one.

With the machine comes a bunch of cards on which are written questions with four possible answers. If the child isn't certain which answer is correct, he can put the card in the machine and it will supply the data.

Saves him the time and trouble of looking it up in a book.

I predict that in a few more years computers will become an integral part of Christmas, blending right in with the aluminum trees and the abstract paintings of the Nativity.

The kiddies of tomorrow will be spared the task of writing letters to Santa Claus. Instead, they will tip toe up to the fireplace on Christmas Eve and hang a punch card on the mantel.

STALINIST EX-PREMIER OF BULGARIA OUSTED

1962 Looks Grim B.C. Labor Warns

Unemployment will still be a grave problem in 1962 despite business predictions for an improved year, B.C. labor warns the provincial cabinet Monday.

The B.C. Federation of Labor, in its annual brief to the cabinet, called for a four-point program to increase employment.

"The business outlook for 1962 gives little cause for optimism to the thousands of unemployed workers in B.C.," it said.

"While most companies predict increases in productivity, we note no such predictions for a rise in employment opportunities."

The brief said that under normal economic conditions the current growth in the labor force—13,000 in the past year—would be welcome. But now it is only "aggravating an already major unemployment crisis."

"New workers cannot be assimilated fast enough by the economy."

The four-point program: A provincial study of the plight of young job seekers, aged 17-24, with assistance from a special legislative committee;

An improved vocational training program with financial assistance for participants;

Boost in B.C. contributions to municipal winter works to 50 per cent instead of 25;

A co-operative federal-provincial social capital fund for schools, housing, hospital and recreation projects.

GOLFING RELIC OF THE PAST . . .

. . . SHOULD BE REPLACED, SAYS SARAZEN

Ryder Cup Series Should Be World-Wide Contest

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Ryder Cup, held between professionals of the United States and Great Britain, is a relic of the past which should be replaced by a Davis Cup type series, veteran Gene Sarazen asserts after his return from a round-the-world golfing trip.

"There are great players and great courses all over the world," said the stocky golfer great in his usual forthright manner. "It's ridiculous to restrict the competition to two nations when golf has become such a terrific world-wide sport."

Sarazen pointed to the lopsided results of the Ryder Cup matches as proof of his contention.

"The United States this year won it for the 11th time in 14 competitions," he pointed out.

"How much better it would be if it was played like the Davis Cup, with playoffs in various zones of the world and the final international winner meeting the defending champion in a challenge round."

Sarazen has fresh fodder for his contention as result of observations made during a world-wide tour in which he supervised a series of international matches. The series, called "This Wonderful World of Golf," will be presented weekly on CBS television starting Jan. 7. Sarazen plays in one match and moderates them all.

"What I wanted to show is the fabulous courses which have been built all over the world," he explained. Naturally, the matches are great, but this really shows that there are courses in foreign countries which can compare with our best."

In his match, the 59-year-old Sarazen played Henry Cotton of England at famed St. Andrews. Other matches, featuring such stars as Gene Littler, Byron Nelson, Jerry Barber, Al Balding, Jack Burke, Dow Finsterwald, Gary Player, Peter Thomson, Mike Souchak and Ken Venturi against foreign stars were filmed in Japan, Australia, Italy, France, England, Argentina, Hong Kong and Canada.

"And, while I can't disclose the results," Sarazen grinned, "we don't win 'em all, not by a long shot."

The former two-time U.S. Open, three-time PGA and Masters champion has solid support for his contention that the United States no longer can feel it dominates world golf simply by teeing off.

One case in point is the fact that little Gary Player, the South African, this year is the leading money winner on the United States pro tour. Among his victories, Player became the first foreigner to win the coveted Masters.

There is enough additional evidence to support Sarazen's contention when you consider the results over the last nine years of the International Golf Association's Canada Cup and international trophy tournaments. This tournament, with two-man teams struggling for team and individual honors, has become known as the world series of golf.

Foreigners have won the individual trophy in six of the nine years and the team trophy five times. The honors were well spread, too.

Individual foreign winners were Antonio Cerdá, of Argentina; Stan Leonard, of Canada (twice); Pete Nakamura, of Japan; Angel Miguel, of Spain, and Flory Van Donck, of Belgium. The three United States winners were Sam Snead, Ben Hogan and Marty Furgol.

Foreign team winners were Argentina, Australia (twice), Japan and Ireland. The United States took it the other four times.

All of which adds up to the fact that Sarazen has a valid idea in suggesting a world-wide type Ryder Cup format and that the P.G.A. should get on the ball and replace an unattractive antique with something more suited to a shrinking world.

Hal Malone LOOKS AT SPORTS

Calendar manufacturers insist Dec. 25 is Christmas Day. Douglas Anderson, the octogenarian hockey player, is a disbeliever.

For Douglas (at 34 the 12th most elderly shinny shooter in existence—the leading relic is Toronto's John Bower, 37, going on 45), Christmas came Nov. 17.

He talked about it Monday at the home of his wife's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Webster. He had driven up from Portland, where he is employed with the Western Hockey League champion Buckaroos.

Today, the Andersons, son Dave, daughters Debbie and Sharon, were off to the Rose City "to spend the winter," as they say in the social columns.

About Nov. 17.

"That was the day I got this phone call from Hal Laycoe" (coach of Portland), said Anderson.

"You still want to play hockey," Laycoe asked.

"I sure do," said Anderson.

"I'll see what I can do," said Laycoe.

The next day Laycoe called back.

"He just wanted to know if I had changed my mind," said Anderson. "Not on your life." I told him. "I want to play and I want to play for you. I figure I have two, maybe three, years left. I'm in shape."

Bucks Match League Cash Awards

Thus assured, Laycoe went to work. Bypassing George Agar, coach of Los Angeles (whose middleheadness suggests he sometimes has difficulty finding his way out of a telephone booth), Laycoe went to Jack Geyer, LA's general manager.

Early Nov. 19, Laycoe, Portland's freestyle long-distance telephone champion, was on the blower to Anderson again.

"Pack your stuff and get here soon as you can," was the message. "I just sent (Ed) Panagakos to LA for you and (Doug) MacAuley."

Hockey students will appreciate why Laycoe's message renewed Anderson's faith in St. Claus.

Consider these factors . . .

• The Portland franchise is the most sound, best promoted, most financially successful in minor hockey. (Crowds of 7,500 to 9,000 are commonplace.)

• Last summer the Portland management sent out contracts containing a $600 bonus to each man.

• The Bucks travel first class, sleep in the finest hotels. Players' wives are sent flowers and chocolates on their birthdays.

• Any league cash award won by a player is automatically matched by the Buckaroos' front office.

Oplulence of this sort is virtually unknown by pros. If it keeps up it could result in club owners asking Harry Gleckman, the Portland general manager, and Laycoe to resign immediately from the executive "treat them like cattle" society.

California Gold Slow in Arriving

To appreciate fully what Portland means to Anderson, you have to turn the clock back to early October.

He had finished the 1960-61 season with Victoria, owned by Jim Piggott and coached by Agar. None had done too well. Anderson amassed 36 points (six goals, 30 assists) with a club that had as many holes as lack of attendance was to put in Piggott's wallet.

Anxious to get in on the California gold rush, Piggott moved his franchise to Los Angeles. (According to late reports the gold is slow in coming. To date 2,998,000 out of 3,000,000 Angelinos couldn't care what kind of Blades Mr. Piggott uses.)

Before leaving Victoria (where he had a "good job" as an automotive parts salesman) for LA's training camp in Saskatoon, Anderson sought written assurance he wouldn't be traded or sold for at least one season.

When Agar balked, Anderson stayed home. He finally yielded to unceasing pressure from Agar, joined the Blades in their exhibition series.

They tramped through the Prairies, the Kootenays and the Okanagan, with Agar playing the role of a vanishing leader every time Anderson tried to talk contract.

Sought Amateur Card 'to Help Kids'

When Agar failed to show for a contract tryout late one night Anderson "shut off my bed light, decided I was through with hockey and would go home."

He went back to his job, accepted Tom Dorman's offer to help IAA in the Commercial League. Suspended for failing to sign with LA—"we never did talk contract seriously"—he sought to get his amateur card so "I could help the kids."

Laycoe stepped in. Doug marched off to Portland, and everybody is happy.

Except, maybe. Mrs. Anderson. She had to pack clothes and prepare children. "These hockey players," she sighed. "They have it easy. They say, 'Pack up, we're moving,' and guess who does the work?"

"It's not the furniture, I mind," said Anderson with a straight face. "It's the small stuff."

"What do you mean, furniture?" asked Mrs. A. "We're not taking it."

"That's what I mean," said Doug.

Taylor Heads List Of Injured Packers

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP)—Green Bay Packers had to help star fullback Jim Taylor off a plane when they returned home Monday night to begin preparations for the National Football League's championship game here Dec. 31.

Also hobbling down the ramp before a hushed welcoming crowd of 1,500 was defensive halfback Johnny Symank. He and Taylor were taken to hospital for examination.

Their names are among seven on a list of Packer starters injured or missing because of military service. It is not certain whether any of them will be able to play against New York Giants for the league crown.

The Packers, Western Conference champions, returned from Los Angeles, where they ended the regular season with a 24-17 victory over the Rams Sunday.

Taylor, the league's second-best ground gainer in the regular season with 1,307 yards, suffered a back injury in Sunday's game.

Symank, also hurt Sunday, said he believes he may have a fractured rib.

Others on the injury list are end Max McGee and offensive guard Jerry Kramer.

Called to army duty in the past six weeks were halfback Paul Hornung, linebacker Ray Nitschke and flanker Boyd Dowler.

Bearcats Bop District Club

PRAGUE (CP)—Port Arthur Bearcats defeated a district hockey team 6-0 Monday night in the north Bohemian town of Chomutov, the Czech news agency Ceteka reported.

Some 11,500 fans watched the Czechs hold off Port Arthur until centre Pete Johnson scored with six minutes left in the opening period. Three minutes later Rudy Misgys gave the Bearcats a 2-0 lead.

GALT, Ont. (CP)—Ted Maki of Galt Terriers, 1960-61 Allan Cup champions and Canada's representatives in the 1962 world hockey tournament, will leave for Europe next week to help Port Arthur Bearcats on their goodwill hockey tour.

HARRY HIRES 'BULLDOG' TO LOOK AFTER TITANS

NEW YORK (AP)—Clyde "Bulldog" Turner, for several years an all-pro centre with Chicago Bears of the National Football League, became the new head football coach Monday of New York Titans of the American Football League. He succeeds Sammy Baugh, who has been feuding openly with owner Harry Wismer.

Wismer said Baugh, whose $20,000-a-year contract had another year to run, would remain on the payroll as a consultant.

Turner, 42, signed for two years at $20,000 a year.

Baugh and Baugh have been throwing verbal darts at each other for most of the two years of their association with the AFL team.

Baugh accused Wismer of not taking him into confidence on player deals. Wismer charged that Baugh violated the "loyalty clause" in his contract.

. . . SHOULD BE REPLACED, SAYS SARAZEN

SNAPS ROCKET'S MARK . . .

FOR WINNING GOALS

Another One for Howe

MONTREAL (CP)—Gordie Howe, the powerful Detroit Red Wings right winger, has snapped another of retired Maurice "Rocket" Richard's National Hockey League records.

The 33-year-old Detroit all-star's new mark, established Sunday at Detroit against Montreal Canadiens, is for most winning goals.

Howe got his 84th winner when the Wings beat the Canadiens 3-1 at Detroit. Richard had 83 when he retired in 1959 after 18 seasons with Montreal.

Cassius Is in a Hurry; Wants to Fight Liston

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK (AP)—Cassius Clay, a boxer in a hurry to be world heavyweight champion, is after Sonny Liston.

Cassius put his challenge on paper Monday and handed it over with the remark: "Now hold on to this. It may be valuable when I am champion."

The paper said: "I want Sonny Liston."

Clay, 19, a member of the pro ranks for only 14 months, doesn't feel any awe for Liston, whom the National Boxing Association rates No. 1 contender for Floyd Patterson's title.

"Why does it seem that everyone is afraid of Liston?" he asked. "Why does everyone seem afraid of his power and his punch? A powerful punch means nothing if it does not find the target. I have no intentions of standing still and being that target."

GETS RING RATING

He was excited when he heard that Ring magazine had ranked him for the first time in the No. 9 slot.

"Going up," said the undefeated youngster from Louisville. "I'm gonna keep climbing. Gonna keep on moving up until I'm the younger heavyweight champion ever."

Floyd Patterson won it when he was 21 and I'm gonna break his record."

Clay has a 10-0 won-lost record including seven knockouts.

He started fighting for cash after winning the Olympic light-heavyweight title in Rome in 1960.

N.W.T. FIND CONFIRMED

Gold-Rush Fever Strikes

EDMONTON (CP) — Re-siduary of International Nickel ports of a claim-staking rush Company. He said Canadian Nickel, an exploration company, staked following a gold find in the Northwest Territories, 275 miles northeast of Yellowknife, were confirmed Monday by the Alberta and Northwest Chamber of Mines here.

G. H. Finland, chamber secretary-manager, said in an interview that the find was made in the Contwoyo Lake area in the barren lands by Canadian Nickel Company Limited, a wholly-owned sub-area as weather conditions improve in spring.

In Toronto a spokesman for International Nickel said: "During the course of exploration operations last summer the company staked a number of claims on the basis of a gold showing which may or may not prove of continuing interest."

The last important gold discovery in the Territories occurred near Yellowknife in 1935.

New Pipeline Issue Zooms on First Day

VANCOUVER (CP) — Units of Western Pacific Products and Crude Oil Pipeline Ltd., which came out officially Monday at a price of $625 each, zoomed to the $865 mark in opening trading, brokers reported.

Each unit consists of $500 in 6½ per cent debentures and 25 shares with a par value of $5 each.

The 6,800 units with total value of $4,250,000 are being used as part financing for a new oil pipeline now being put into use between Taylor in northeastern B.C. and Kamloops.

The line, constructed by the interests of Frank McMahon of Westcoast Transmission Company, will carry oil from

8 Licences To Export Power Issued

OTTAWA (CP) — Eight Canadian power companies have been granted licences to export surplus electricity, Trade Minister Hees announced Monday. The announcement said 16 licences, issued by the National Energy Board, are involved.

Most of the exports will be of interruptible electricity-power that can be cut off at the discretion of the exporting company.

The licences permit export of about 8,052,000 kilowatt hours of interruptible energy, about one-third of which is to be transmitted through the United States and back to Canada for consumption.

British Columbia Electric got approval for two licences, one for one megawatt of firm power and up to 2,500,000 kilowatt hours a year for five years, another for 1,500,000,000 kilowatt hours annually of interruptible energy for five years.

CHRISTMAS IN VICTORIA ... HE'LL NEVER FORGET

A Saskatchewan man had been in Victoria only a few hours Monday evening when his car was broken into and $500 worth of clothing and personal possessions stolen.

C. F. McDonald, Regina, had not even had time to register at a hotel.

He left his car on a Yates Street parking lot and returned to find it had been entered through a no-draught window.

The thief took all Mr. McDonald's luggage, comprising a leather bag and a leather suitcase, containing a suit and other clothes, transistor radio, electric razor and coffee percolator.

He was in the city to visit friends and relatives over Christmas.

Getting a good idea when one is needed can be a tough job.

With this in mind, Bob Ludwig has started an organization known as the Idea Clinic.

"Ideas originating in any part of the world will be examined by our clinic," he says. "For instance, an interesting new development in Iceland or New Orleans could present a potential for local industrial establishment."

"Our clinic will act as an exchange between those who have ideas and those who need them . . . our main interest will be in gadgets, processes, promotion, sales and advertising."

"We will avoid political, social, religious or literary ideas."

In case this sounds a bit screwy . . . W. E. Ward tells me a man with a spyglass is still paid a hereditary retainer by the British government to watch for the Spanish Armada off the coast of Devon.

This, it seems, is one of those ancient offices that have never been repealed by Parliament—perhaps because the man may now be looking out for something worse!

The merry flutter of Christmas cards by every mail among them a number of reproductions of paintings by famous Canadian artists.

There are winter scenes by Paul Rodnick and Manly MacDonald, exquisite floral bouquets by Victoria's own Emily Sartain and a lively water color impression of Cadboro Bay by Owen Goward—always a pleasing performer.

But the whiskered Santas, the flying reindeer, the angel choirs, the bells and the candles still predominate—with an occasional touch of more earthy novelty such as the card bearing austere architectural drawings from Deputy Public Works Minister Arnold Webb.

Court Defends Reasonable Use of Force

Magistrate William Ostler today defended actions of police as they tried to subdue an 18-year-old sailor and place him in the city lockup Nov. 18.

"The police used no more force than was necessary," he said.

At the same time he quashed a charge against Joseph Alphonse Duguay, of HMCS Naden, of assaulting Constable Keith Hollett in the execution of his duty and convicted him of a lesser charge of common assault.

He imposed a $50 fine on the sailor.

CHARGE WITHDRAWN

After Magistrate Ostler announced his decision in a lengthy judgment on the assault charge, the Crown asked permission to withdraw a further charge against Duguay of obstructing a police officer.

City police court was packed today as the case—involving defense charges of police brutality—was closed. The assault charge hearing was previously spread over two days.

Duguay was charged after an incident at a Fisgard Street confectionery store and pool hall, November 18.

FOUR OFFICERS

He resisted vigorously as four police officers tried to place him in a cell. He struck Cons. Hollett a number of times and the constable said he struck the sailor twice in the stomach "to subdue him."

Duguay, had been asked to leave the store premises by Cons. Hollett but up to the time he was arrested for obstructing a police officer he hadn't committed an offence, the magistrate said. The most he had done was trespass.

To make the arrest legal Cons. Hollett had to be in the execution of his duty at the time, but he hadn't entered the premises because of a disturbance or similar reason.

To obstruct a police officer means making his duty more difficult. But just because a person doesn't do what a police officer says doesn't constitute an obstruction, he said.

SERIOUS CHARGE

Duguay had been arrested for obstructing a police officer but was charged in this case with assaulting a police officer.

"Assaulting a police officer is a serious charge and one the courts deal with severely. It's my opinion the Crown has failed to prove its case . . . the accused will be convicted of common assault," he said.

At the end of his judgment Magistrate Ostler said he would have to touch on another matter.

"There has been a great deal of comment—both inside and outside this courtroom—on the accused's claim of police brutality," he said.

The defendant is a healthy, athletic young man. He was not drunk, but had been drinking and had a temper and was quite capable of giving a lot of trouble to four large men, the magistrate said.

"The police used no more force than was necessary," he said.

He said it was a good thing the police subdued the sailor at the point they did "to prevent further injury to anyone."

Saanich's traditional stand-offish attitude to the city was given a hard slap in kind, today by city public works committee.

Alfred Geoffrey Edge low pointed out the Saanich boundary sign on Douglas at the south side of Tolmie was actually located in the city side of the street.

"There are all sorts of Saanich signs in the city," added city engineer J. C. Gurnett.

So . . . the committee ordered him to remove all of them.

CITY WON'T ALLOW IT SO THERE!

Estimates for removal of large rock outcrop north of Saanich's traditional stand-offish attitude to the city were given a hard slap in kind, today by city public works committee.

Jaycees officials also reminded Victorians that deadline for a photo contest in connection with the lighting contest, is Dec. 29.

Let Skin Divers Find Treasures Under Tree

By PENNY SAVER

If you have an ardent skin diver on your Christmas list and you are still wondering what on earth one buys for a skin diver, lend an ear and I'll try and help you out.

An under-water compass is a safety device every diver should have and it would make an ideal gift.

Latest on the market is prism styled, selling for $6.50. Instead of looking through the top of the compass, one looks through the end. This allows the diver to extend his arm when taking a reading and eliminates chances of the needle being affected by the metal air tanks.

Sealed in unbreakable plastic the compass is on a green nylon strap. Included is an underwater navigational book.

Another must for a diver who plans on a little deep diving is a depth gauge. One for beginners has depth reading to 150 feet and for more experienced divers there are gauges to 250 feet. These are sealed on a nylon strap and they're $12.50.

Divers car aerial flags are another gift idea. They're made of red and white plastic with a picture of a diver in the centre. Attachments to fix them to the aerial are included in the price of $1.49.

A warning buoy is a safety gadget that isn't in common use yet. It has a red and white nylon flag, stainless steel telescoping mast, styrofoam float, lead weight to hold it upright when released and a metal ring to attach to a belt.

When the diver is ready to come up, he takes the buoy off of his belt, pulls up the mast and lets it go. It will rise to the surface immediately and is a good warning signal to boats in the area that there's a depth man below. It is possible for the diver to attach a cord to the ring so he will have no trouble finding it when he surfaces. Reasonable price is $8.88.

Call me if you're interested in finding out where I saw these gift ideas.

Toothpicks for Pins Hold Net in Place

Winner of my pressing board for a sewing tip this week is Mrs. Edward H. Merz, Chesterfield, Mo.

This is the season when most of us with teen-age daughters are literally fighting yards and yards of net for forms. Here is a good hint for sewing and measuring my net. Pins will not stay put in net, so I have found that round tooth picks do a splendid job for holding the two pieces of net together for stitching and hemming.

Election Changes Her Life

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Choice of her husband as the next mayor of Victoria was a proud moment for Mrs. R. B. (Dick) Wilson but, at the same time, it has completely changed her mode of living.

A tall, slight woman, with a sensitive face, clear blue eyes and a smile that shows a sense of humor, she has always devoted her talents to her home, her children and a circle of friends.

Now her life must be shared with the public.

And this attractive woman says: "I'm not sure whether I will be a success at it."

"Mrs. Scurrah has set such a wonderful example I'm afraid I'll never be able to follow it, especially with a family still at home."

"I'm not even sure whether I know how to open a bazaar. I've only opened one in my life."

NO CLUBS

Various projects of the Women's Committee to the Protestant Orphanage, where she has been honorary president of the junior auxiliary. She is also an associate member of the Junior Auxiliary to the Royal Jubilee Hospital.

This doesn't mean she is a clubwoman.

"I've never belonged to clubs," she says. "I've always had other things to do."

Born Elizabeth Muttlebury, a member of a prominent Winnipeg family, Mrs. Wilson grew up and went to school "around the world," for her parents traveled extensively.

"I even spent some of my school years in Victoria," she tells you.

She loves the outdoors and has done a lot of gardening at the family home on Rutland Road in the Uplands, overlooking the sea.

She goes shooting with her husband, "although I really don't shoot well, I merely follow the party around . . . and I love it."

LIVED ABROAD

When they were first married the Wilsons did a lot of riding together, too. "But the children came along and we gave it up," Mrs. Wilson says.

"We play quite a bit of golf now. And, as a family, we do like to ski."

This is proven when she adds that the family is looking forward to a skiing week with a group of their friends and

Father Ruled Negligent In Shooting

COURTENAY (CP)—A coroner's jury ruled Monday that the shooting of an elderly man by an 11-year-old boy was accidental but due to the negligence of an indulgent father.

Jurors were inquiring into the death of Murdoch MacDonald, 70, while he was picking Christmas greenery in the forest near his home not far from here.

The boy said he fired his shotgun at what he thought was a deer and then found MacDonald shot in the back.

The father told the jury he was hunting with his three sons, aged 15, 11 and 6.

He and the oldest boy carried .30-30 calibre rifles and the 11-year-old a shotgun. The youngest boy carried no weapon, the father said.

The jury said the father was negligent in allowing the boy to carry a firearm and recommended that adults who take minors hunting should be responsible for their infractions of the Game Act and subject to penalty.

APPOINTMENT of retiring Coun. Gordon Elworthy, defeated reeveship candidate, to Oak Bay Recreation Commission was approved by council Monday night. He was chairman of council's parks committee and was the commission's contact with council during his term.

Chinese Aid Sought

BELGRADE (AP)—A two-man Albanian economic delegation left for Peking Monday to negotiate terms in which Communist China would give economic assistance to Albania, reports reaching this Yugoslavian capital said. In an ideological dispute with the Soviet Union, Albanian leaders accused Moscow of imposing an economic blockade on Albania. Peking sided with Albania in the dispute.

The Worleys were living on the 60-foot vessel, owned by National Fish Co., Vancouver, and operated by Nordic Fish Co., Courtenay, while their own vessel was under refit.

Once the scow started to settle before 30-mile-an-hour gales, it sank in seven minutes.

The couple, having homesteaded at Halcyonia, Sask., are old friends of the prime minister and have hosted him on trips to the Island.

Both Mr. Primmer and his wife are natives of Bournemouth, England. After a few years of farming they moved to Port Alberni in 1936.

Later, Mr. Primmer set up a lumber business in Parksville and they came to live here in 1945.

Now retired, Mr. Primmer is active in the community and helped establish senior citizens' housing.

NANAIMO—A joint campaign for Christmas cheer has hit the halfway mark with $2,500 in the bank.

A project of the Salvation Army and Royal Canadian Legion, money contributed will be used to buy hampers for the needy, Army Capt. Charles Smith said.

NANAIMO (CP)—John Donald, former police chief in New Westminster, died Monday in hospital here. He had retired from the New Westminster force in 1957 after serving as chief constable for 13 years.

His retirement came three months after he had suffered a heart attack.

CAMPBELL RIVER—School District 72 has applied for inclusion of Cedar School within the boundaries of Campbell River village.

"We must do everything possible to see that it is done," said Commissioner Don Corker. "But it must have the approval of the people living in the area and there must be a vote held in the village."

DUNCAN—Cowichan Bay and Duncan residents are signing a petition, to be sent to Highways Minister Gagliardi, asking that the Pilimury Bridge, Tzouhalem Road, be repaired or replaced.

The bridge was closed to traffic at the end of August after a heavy truckload had weakened the underpinning.

Mrs. D. D. Studly, Khenipsen Road, organizer of the petition, said it already has more than 100 signatures.

Mrs. Studly said the petition would ask for repair or replacement, as the present situation is causing unnecessary mileage and inconvenience to residents and visitors, and in the event of the repetition of serious flooding, a replaced bridge would give an alternative access to the Trans-Canada Highway.

DUNCAN—Heavy truck traffic through Duncan's business district probably will be subject of complaint by a delegation to Highways Minister Gagliardi.

Bert Gray, Chamber of Commerce roads committee chairman, to head a delegation asking for a straighter, safer Cowichan Lake Road, suggested the government may also be asked to consider an alternate route for trucks, bypassing the city on the south side.

DUNCAN—Mrs. Ruth Elizabeth Price, 52, died at King's Daughters' Hospital Monday.

A native of Victoria, she was until a few months ago a teacher at Alexander School.

Daughter of a pioneer family, she was a Duncan resident most of her life. Her grandfather was charged with the care of Kuper Island Anglican Mission.

Mrs. Price was educated at Queen Margaret's, Victoria College and Victoria Normal School.

Funeral, from St. Peter's Anglican Church at Qualicum, will be at 2:30 p.m. Thursday.

Gold Shipments Bound for U.S.

TOFINO (CP)—The second shipment of 12 tons of gold concentrate is being made this week from the small Vancouver Island mine of Copper Town Mines Ltd. for shipment to the Tacoma, Wash., smelter.

The high-grade operation, seven miles above the head of Bedwell Inlet and 18 miles north of this west coast Island community, went into production at the end of October to become B.C.'s fourth gold producer.

The mine, the former Musketeer property first discovered and put into operation during the depression of the 1930s and shut down when war began, currently is milling ore on a three-shift basis through its 50-ton mill.

The mine poured its fourth gold brick, about 8.6 pounds, last Saturday, but more production is going to Tacoma to take advantage of the U.S. dollar exchange.

The Copper Town Mine was made a public company about four months ago when the private developer ran out of money.

First shipment of gold went out by barge and truck to Tacoma five weeks ago. It was worth $10,000.

COMOX—Weekend gales and snow here sank a fish scow that carried with it the belongings of fisherman Ray Worley and his wife.

The Worleys were living on the 60-foot vessel, owned by National Fish Co., Vancouver, and operated by Nordic Fish Co., Courtenay, while their own vessel was under refit.

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Green expressed Canadian displeasure Monday over both the Indian offensive in Goa and some of the recent United Nations actions in the Congo.

Canada "regrets very much" the Goa incident, he told a press conference. But he declined to comment on whether it amounts to Indian aggression and said there had been no breakdown in Commonwealth consultation.

Mr. Green said the Canadian position is that NATO is not directly affected because Canada does not admit the claim of Portugal, a NATO member, that its Indian enclaves including Goa are an integral part of Portugal. Nor is the Commonwealth affected, he said, although India is a member.

He was asked whether Canada was informed in advance of India's intention to take military action.

"We all knew about the massing of troops on the borders," he replied. "There was plenty of evidence this was coming."

Mr. Green conceded that in some ways the Portuguese enclaves in India resemble the British colony of Hong Kong, bordering Communist China. But he said the difference is Britain does not regard Hong Kong as an integral part of the United Kingdom.

Mr. Green, reporting on the NATO ministerial meeting in Paris last week, said all 15 members of the North Atlantic alliance are "critical of certain aspects of the UN operation" in Katanga.

However, he said Canada, backed by Norway, supported the United States' stand for continuing UN operations there.

Canada regards some UN recent actions there as "not very wise," Mr. Green said.

He did not elaborate, but noted that it is difficult to draw the line between what constitutes a UN offensive and what is designed to protect UN personnel and remove mercenaries from Katanga.

GOA REMNANT OUTPOST OF ONCE-GREAT EMPIRE

BOMBAY, India (AP)—Embattled Goa, the tiny, tropical focal point of world attention, means many things to many people.

The hilly, river-seamed Portuguese territory is a remnant outpost of Portuguese empire, a toehold of Christianity in Asia, a bone in the throat of Indian anti-colonialists and the home of gentle, dark-skinned men famous in Asia and the Middle East as hotel staff personnel, servants and bearers.

To the Portuguese, it was "golden Goa," the brightest jewel in the vast necklace of colonies conquered more than four centuries ago when Portugal was a mighty sea power.

Goa and two other small territories—Diu and Damao—on India's west coast total only 1,370 square miles and hold some 600,000 people. Prince Edward Island is bigger.

Goa no longer is rich. From the 16th century, when it boasted opulent cathedrals and palaces, exquisite homes and a dazzling life of wealth for its colonial class, the territory has steadily declined.

Today many of its people must seek outside employment to help their families live.

Until recent years, Goa, like Diu and Damao, was largely agricultural, growing rice, coconuts, cashew and betel nuts and mangos. Discovery of manganese and iron ore produced a mining industry, with Indians making up most of the work force.

But despite the poor economy, Portugal refused to surrender Goa. The Lisbon government insisted Goa was a constitutional part of Portugal.

Many observers say it is strictly pride that kept the Portuguese clinging to the vanished traditions of Asian empire.

Goa was the administrative seat for Portugal's last holdings for Asia—the Indian territories, half the island of Timor in the East Indies and Macao on the doorstep of Communist China.

To Portugal's Roman Catholics, Goa is still the Rome of the East. St. Francis Xavier, the apostle of the Indies, spent 10 years in Goa and is largely responsible for half the population being Catholic.

When he died in China in 1552 his body was returned to Goa's Church of Bom Jesus where it still reposes.

B.C. FIRM WILL BUILD PIPELINE

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP)—A British Columbia corporation has won state approval for taking over construction of a $6,200,000 natural gas pipeline on the Olympic Peninsula.

The pipeline was originally to have been built by Natural Gas Transmission Company, a Washington firm which would have been owned by Magna Pipe Line Limited of B.C.

This plan was earlier approved by the Washington utilities and transportation commission.

However, the commission Monday approved a substitute proposal under which the Washington firm will be dissolved and Magna will build the line.

Nobody Excused Survival Drills

Greater Victoria School Board Monday refused to abandon its survival training program and indicated that every child will have to participate in the civil defence drills.

"No child will be excused from a drill because of a letter from a parent or anything like that," he announced.

"Otherwise it would frustrate the whole program. We will have 100 per cent participation."

Other trustees pointed out every effort will be made to explain the program to the children so that they would not be unnecessarily frightened.

"This is something that the board alone must decide," said chairman W. C. Gelling. "The responsibility for the safety of the children in the schools belongs to the board."

"We cannot delegate that responsibility nor can it be assumed by anyone else."

AN EDITORIAL

The Spirit of Giving

Just a few days remain before the Times closes off its appeal for the Children of India fund.

At the start of the campaign, the hope was expressed that we might raise $10,000. If readers will respond generously over the Christmas season—as they have up to now—this target may be achieved.

The Times does not attempt to "promote" this campaign. No special events are staged; no entertainments, auctions, raffles or bingo games are held.

Rather, we try simply to tell the story of the need, believing that, in this land of prosperity and abundance, we ought to pause at least once a year to think of our fellow human beings across the seas to whom a cup of milk is a genuine blessing.

Thereafter, we depend simply on the goodwill and generosity of our readers.

We hope that you will find it in your hearts to send us a contribution—however small—so that on Christmas Day we will be able to report to Dr. Hirschmanova and the Unitarian Service Committee that Victorians have "done their bit."

THEY NEED A HAND

Waiting for the helping hand you can extend through the Times Fund are two typical Indian waifs. Nothing you can do is too much for these children and nothing you can give too little.

CHILDREN OF INDIA

The Setting Sun His Only Glitter

All over Victoria lights and decorations are going up on homes, offices and public buildings.

They turn houses into fairy-lands of pleasure that never fail to delight our children.

But for millions in India there are no lights and no decorations at any time of the year, and the only color in a child's day is the sunset.

HE DIDN'T WATCH

The next day the USC worker returned to the village and was met by the boy.

"I was so happy," said the lad, "that for the first time in my life I did not watch the sunset."

This gives some idea of the difference in values between India and Canada—and how much we can do there with a little.

The cots of replacing two or three bulbs in the string of lights outside your home can supply milk for a whole year.

LOOK DIM

The brightest light on the finest tree in Victoria would look dim to a starving Indian boy when placed alongside a battered tin cup full to the brim with sweet, nourishing milk.

By having these lives we can implant a seed of friendship in thousands of young hearts. They will grow up to become adult leaders of their country and eventually the cups of milk may blossom into strong bonds of friendship between Canada and India.

Donations can be taken or made by the task force to help the first such connection in this country, was based on developments in a number of foreign countries and advancement of technical knowledge in the United States.

As envisioned by the task force, the intertie would be in operation by 1966 with a capacity of from 650,000 to 2,500,000 kilowatts. The fixture also depends on how many California private utilities participate, and whether Canada decides to sell any of her share of Columbia River power in this country.

The Canadian federal government is opposed to the outright cash sale of Columbia power to the U.S. on a long-term basis.

COULD HANDLE COLUMBIA POWER

1,000-Mile Power Line U.S. Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—An interior department task force recommended Tuesday construction at the earliest practicable time of an extra-high-voltage direct current power interconnection between the Pacific Northwest and Southwest.

The proposal, for what would be the first such connection in this country, was based on developments in a number of foreign countries and advancement of technical knowledge in the United States.

Today's announcement laid heavy emphasis on the "exciting promise" stemming from the research on new techniques of long-distance direct current transmissions.

The load proposed would compare with a top capacity now in this country of 345,000 kilowatts using alternating current transmission lines.

Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall emphasized in the announcement—made public at a press conference—that such transmission may play a great role in stimulating new industrial developments in West Virginia, Pennsylvania,

North Dakota, Montana and Alaska.

Conferences should be arranged immediately to determine the interest of all utilities, publicly and privately owned, the report said.

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—Congo Premier Cyrille Adoula and Katanga President Moise Tshombe sat down together today at the United Nations military base of Kitona in an attempt to settle the problem of Katanga Province's secession from the rest of The Congo.

The problem exploded into fighting between Katangans and UN forces on December 5.

While Adoula and Tshombe talked, UN soldiers in Elisabethville, the Katanga capital, were under orders to hold back their fire.

Tshombe, Adoula In Peace Talks

Tshombe left Ndola, Northern Rhodesia, with United States Ambassador Edmund Gullion, while Adoula flew from Leopoldville, accompanied by a strong team of his ministers and UN Undersecretary Ralph Bunche.

Adoula warned that Tshombe would have to end his rebellion against the central government and "accept his responsibilities under the fundamental law."

U.S. Warns of Danger to UN As Russ Veto Goa Ceasefire

36-Hour Battle Seems Over

BELGAUM (Reuters)—India today claimed the surrender of all three Portuguese territories on its west coast after a 36-hour invasion but said one port in Goa was still holding out.

But in Lisbon, a Portuguese official said troops in the Goan capital of Nova Goa (Panjim) and other places in all three of Portugal's territories still were fighting.

As India began preparing a military government of the captured territories, a defense ministry spokesman said the port of Marmagao in Goa, the largest territory, still was resisting.

Reports reaching this town near the Goa border said Indian troops in the capital of Nova Goa were rounding up Portuguese remnants and stragglers.

The defense ministry said "there may be some pockets here and there, but generally the Portuguese have surrendered. The whole of Goa has come under our administration".

Marmagao is Goa's main deepwater harbor opposite Nova Goa.

Earlier, a defense ministry statement said the invasion operation ended with the surrender of Portuguese troops in Goa, Damao and Diu.

CASUALTIES LIGHT

The defense ministry said eight Indian soldiers were killed in the entire operation, some were wounded, and all available indications were that Portuguese casualties also were light.

More than 1,000 Portuguese troops laid down their arms and others were continuing to surrender, the defense ministry said.

It added that "roads were heavily mined, bridges and culverts destroyed and these were the only delaying factors."

The Portuguese colonial administration had already collapsed when the Indian armed forces entered the occupied territories yesterday.

"Everywhere the civil population not only warmly welcomed our troops but also rendered all possible assistance to them."

Maj.-Gen. Kenneth Candeth said he was assuming responsibility as military governor of Goa on behalf of the Indian government "of all territories which were formerly Portuguese possessions in India."

"I was so happy," said the lad, "that for the first time in my life I did not watch the sunset."

SETTLEMENT SOUGHT

Dutch Offer to Talk New Guinea Situation

THE HAGUE (Reuters)—The Netherlands today reiterated willingness to start negotiations with Indonesia on Dutch New Guinea following a renewed call for "liberation" of the territory by Indonesian President Sukarno.

A foreign office spokesman said discussions could begin as soon as the parties agreed on a basis for them.

"In the procedure to arrive at a constructive settlement of the future of New Guinea, a phase of negotiations is very probable," the spokesman said.

Indonesian Forces Ordered to Prepare

JAKARTA (Reuters)—President Sukarno today called on the Indonesian people to the armed forces to be prepared at any time that I may decide later to carry out the task of liberating West Irian from the chains of Dutch colonialism."

Indonesia, which calls West New Guinea "West Irian," has claimed it since becoming independent from The Netherlands in 1949 and has opposed Dutch moves to get United Nations support for granting it self-determination.

"This can only lead to chaos and disintegration of the United Nations," said Stevenson.

Portugal requested the emergency meeting of the Security Council and Ambassador Vasco Viera Garin charged that the Indian government was making war on the small territories because of a forthcoming Indian election and also because of its border difficulties with Red China.

'Chaos and Disintegration' Possible

The action of the Soviet Union was but one "in its long role of obstruction." But more ominous was Russia's support from other countries which seemed to indicate they were trying to rewrite the UN charter to sanction the use of force when it suited their purposes.

"This can only lead to chaos and disintegration of the United Nations," said Stevenson.

Portugal requested the emergency meeting of the Security Council and Ambassador Vasco Viera Garin charged that the Indian government was making war on the small territories because of a forthcoming Indian election and also because of its border difficulties with Red China.

Britain's Sir Patrick Dean, saying his delegation had been "shocked and dismayed" by the news of India's attack, said like Stevenson he did not wish to discuss the merits of the case between India and Portugal but the use of force could not be condoned under the UN charter.

CHRISTMAS IN VICTORIA ... HE'LL NEVER FORGET

A Saskatchewan man had been in Victoria only a few hours Monday evening when his car was broken into and $500 worth of clothing and personal possessions stolen.

C. F. McDonald, Regina, had not even had time to register at a hotel.

He left his car on a Yates Street parking lot and returned to find it had been entered through a non-draught window.

The thief took all Mr. McDonald's luggage, comprising a leather bag and a leather suitcase, containing a suit and other clothes, transistor radio, electric razor and coffee percolator.

He was in the city to visit friends and relatives over Christmas.

Getting a good idea when one is needed can be a tough job.

With this in mind, Bob Ludwig has started an organization known as the Idea Clinic.

"Ideas originating in any part of the world will be examined by our clinic," he says. "For instance, an interesting new development in Iceland or New Orleans could present a potential for local industrial establishment."

"Our clinic will act as an exchange between those who have ideas and those who need them . . . our main interest will be in gadgets, processes, promotion, sales and advertising."

"We will avoid political, social, religious or literary ideas."

In case this sounds a bit screwy, W. E. Ward tells me a man with a spyglass is still paid a hereditary retainer by the British government to watch for the Spanish Armada off the coast of Devon.

This, it seems, is one of those ancient offices that have never been repealed by Parliament—perhaps because the man may now be looking out for something worse!

The merry flutter of Christmas cards by every mail among them a number of reproductions of paintings by famous Canadian artists.

There are winter scenes by Paul Rodrick and Manly MacDonald, exquisite floral bouquets by Victoria's own Emily Sartain and a lively water color impression of Cadboro Bay by Owen Goward—always a pleasing performer.

But the whiskered Santas, the flying reindeer, the angel choirs, the bells and the candles still predominate—with an occasional touch of more earthy novelty such as the card bearing austere architectural drawings from Deputy Public Works Minister Arnold Webb.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

The dog apparently tripped the wire mesh from the cages, freeing the rabbits, and then killed them.

William E. Hopkins, 3975 Cumberland Road has received a cash award from the Suggestion Award Board of the Public Service of Canada and a congratulatory letter from the Chief of Naval Personnel for his design for a visual indicator of course control in gunnery radar.

Mr. Hopkins, an employee at the Naval Armament Depot in Esquimalt since 1952, submitted his design to the Suggestion Award Board for assessment and trial by specialists.

The idea has been adopted by the Royal Canadian Navy.

Court Defends 'Reasonable' Use of Force

Magistrate William Ostler today defended actions of police as they tried to subdue an 18-year-old sailor and place him in the city lockup Nov. 18.

"The police used no more force than was necessary," he said.

At the same time he quashed a charge against Joseph Alphonse Duguay, of HMCS Naden, of assaulting Constable Keith Hollett in the execution of his duty and convicted him of a lesser charge of common assault.

He imposed a $50 fine on the sailor.

CHARGE WITHDRAWN

After Magistrate Ostler announced his decision in a lengthy judgment on the assault charge, the Crown asked permission to withdraw a further charge against Duguay of obstructing a police officer.

City police court was packed today as the case—involving defence charges of police brutality—was closed. The assault charge hearing was previously spread over two days.

Duguay was charged after an incident at a Flissard Street confectionery store and pool hall, November 18.

FOUR OFFICERS

He resisted vigorously as four police officers tried to place him in a cell. He struck Cons. Hollett a number of times and the constable said he struck the sailor twice in the stomach "to subdue him."

Duguay had been asked to leave the store premises by Cons. Hollett but up to the time he was arrested for obstructing a police officer he hadn't committed an offence, the magistrate said. The most he had done was trespass.

To make the arrest legal Cons. Hollett had to be in the execution of his duty at the time, but he hadn't entered the premises because of a disturbance or similar reason.

To obstruct a police officer means making his duty more difficult. But just because a person doesn't do what a police officer says doesn't constitute an obstruction, he said.

SERIOUS CHARGE

Duguay had been arrested for obstructing a police officer but was charged in this case with assaulting a police officer.

"Assaulting a police officer is a serious charge and one the courts deal with severely. It's my opinion the Crown has failed to prove its case . . . the accused will be convicted of common assault," he said.

At the end of his judgment Magistrate Ostler said he would have to touch on another matter.

"There has been a great deal of comment—both inside and outside this courtroom—on the accused's claim of police brutality," he said.

The defendant is a healthy, athletic young man. He was not drunk but had been drinking and had a temper and was quite capable of giving a lot of trouble to four large men, the magistrate said.

"The police used no more force than was necessary," he said.

He said it was a good thing the police subdued the sailor at the point they did "to prevent further injury to anyone."

CITY WON'T ALLOW IT

SO THERE!

Saanich's traditional stand-offish attitude to the city was given a hard slap in kind today by city public works committee.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgell pointed out the Saanich boundary sign on Douglas at the south side of Tolmie was actually located on the city side of the street.

"There are all sorts of Saanich signs in the city," added city engineer J. C. Garnett.

So . . . the committee ordered him to remove all of them.

Estimates for removal of the large outcrop north of Memorial Arena and constructing a parking garage on the site will be sought jointly by the arena commission and city council's arena committee.

Decision was made Monday during discussion of alternative parking accommodation if the city sells land behind the arena to the curling club for its planned $1,000,000 expansion.

Ladies' Day will be held by the Victoria Rotary Club Thursday at 12:10 p.m. in the Empress Hotel.

The idea has been adopted by the Royal Canadian Navy.

Victoria and District Amateur Baseball Association will stage a Christmas bingo program tonight at Club Sirocco, starting at 8.

AN EDITORIAL

The Spirit of Giving

Just a few days remain before the Times closes off its appeal for the Children of India fund. At the start of the campaign, the hope was expressed that we might raise $10,000. If readers will respond generously over the Christmas season—as they have up to now—this target may be achieved.

The Times does not attempt to "promote" this campaign. No special events are staged; no entertainments, auctions, raffles or bingo games are held.

Rather, we try simply to tell the story of the need, believing that, in this land of prosperity and abundance, we ought to pause at least once a year to think of our fellow human beings across the seas to whom a cup of milk is a genuine blessing.

Thereafter, we depend simply on the goodwill and generosity of our readers.

We hope that you will find it in your hearts to send us a contribution—however small—so that on Christmas Day we will be able to report to Dr. Hirschmanova and the Unitarian Service Committee that Victorians have "done their bit."

FINAL ★★ BULLETINS

UN Forces Seize Katanga Mine Plants

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—A United Nations spokesman said UN forces seized Union Miniere Mining Company installations in Elisabethville today after a heavy exchange of fire in which three Ethiopian soldiers were wounded.

UN forces were compelled to move against civilians and "mercenaries" despite a hold-fire order, the spokesman said. The order is in effect during talks between Congo President Cyrille Adoula and Katanga President Moise Tshombe in Kitona.

Canada Warns of UN Money Troubles

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—Canada warned the United Nations today against repeating the collapse of the League of Nations because of money troubles.

Commenting on the current UN financial crisis, Canadian representative Brig. J. H. Price said one of the primary causes of the League's failure was the refusal of all but a few big powers to pay the bills.

Diefenbaker Plans Visit to Sweden

STOCKHOLM (Reuters)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker has accepted an invitation to visit Sweden, the Swedish Foreign Ministry announced today. The date for the visit has not yet been fixed.

Quebec 'Kickbacks' Netted $2 Million

MONTREAL (CP)—The Salvas Royal Commission today ended public hearings into a kickbacks system which commission counsel Taschereau Fortier said netted more than $2,000,000 for persons designated by the former Union Nationale government of Quebec between 1955 and 1960.

Mr. Justice Eli Salvas, commission chairman, adjourned meetings until Jan. 16, when he is scheduled to hand down decisions on a number of motions of contempt.

Ford, UAW Strike Talks Resume

TORONTO (CP)—Talks between Ford of Canada and the United Auto Workers (UAW) resumed today in the wake of votes among workers at three Ontario plants authorizing strike action by the union.

After the Oakville, Ont., workers last night voted 98.2 per cent in favor of strike action if necessary, UAW Local 707 president Roy Dymond said:

"We're now armed with the authority of our membership. I hope this will persuade Ford to get down to serious negotiations."

1,000-Mile Power Line U.S. Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—An Interior department task force recommended Tuesday construction at the earliest practicable time of an extra-high voltage direct current power interconnection between the Pacific Northwest and Southwest.

The proposal, for what would be the first such connection in this country, was based on developments in a number of foreign countries and advancement of technical knowledge in the United States.

As envisioned by the task force, the intertie would be in operation by 1966 with a capacity of from 650,000 to 2,500,000 kilowatts. The fixture

INDIA TROOPS MOP UP

36-Hour Battle Appears Ended

BELGAUM (Reuters)—India today claimed the surrender of all three Portuguese territories on its west coast after a 36-hour invasion but said one port in Goa was still holding out.

But in Lisbon, a Portuguese official said troops in the Goan capital of Nova Goa (Panjim) and other places in all three of Portugal's territories still were fighting.

As India began preparing a military government of the captured territories, a defence ministry spokesman said the port of Marmagao in Goa, the largest territory, still was resisting.

Reports reaching this town near the Gao border said Indian troops in the capital of Nova Goa were rounding up Portuguese remnants and stragglers.

The defence ministry said "there may be some pockets here and there but generally the Portuguese have surrendered. The whole of Goa has come under our administration."

Marmagao is Goa's main deepwater harbor opposite Nova Goa.

Earlier, a defence ministry statement said the invasion operation ended with the surrender of Portuguese troops in Goa, Damao and Diu.

CASUALTIES LIGHT

The defence ministry said eight Indian soldiers were killed in the entire operation, some were wounded, and all available indications were that Portuguese casualties also were light.

More than 1,000 Portuguese troops laid down their arms and others were continuing to surrender, the defence ministry said.

It added that "roads were heavily mined, bridges and culverts destroyed and these were the only delaying factors."

The Portuguese colonial administration had already collapsed when the Indian armed forces entered the occupied territories yesterday.

"Everywhere the civil population not only warmly welcomed our troops but also rendered all possible assistance to them."

Maj.-Gen. Kenneth Candeth said he was assuming responsibility as military governor of Goa on behalf of the Indian government "of all territories which were formerly Portuguese possessions in India."

Tshombe left Ndola, Northern Rhodesia, with United States Ambassador Edmund Gullion, while Adoula flew from Leopoldville, accompanied by a strong team of his ministers and UN Undersecretary Ralph Bunche.

Adoula warned that Tshombe would have to end his rebellion against the central government and "accept his responsibilities under the fundamental law." The Congo's provisional constitution which relegates Tshombe to the comparatively minor and subservient role of a provincial president.

COLLAPSES

Suffering a heart attack on the golf course, Joseph P. Kennedy, father of President Kennedy, was rushed to a West Palm Beach hospital today in serious condition. Kennedy, 73, was ambassador to Britain from 1937 to 1940. Only a few hours before Kennedy had seen the president off on his return flight to Washington after a day's rest on the Florida sun from his weekend trip to South America.

Tshombe, Adoula Talk Peace

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—Congo Premier Cyrille Adoula and Katanga President Moise Tshombe sat down together today at the United Nations military base of Kitona in an attempt to settle the problem of Katanga Province's secession from the rest of the Congo.

The problem exploded into fighting between Katangans and UN forces on December 5.

While Adoula and Tshombe talked, UN soldiers in Elisabethville, the Katanga capital, were under orders to hold back their fire.

Tshombe left Ndola, Northern Rhodesia, with United States Ambassador Edmund Gullion, while Adoula flew from Leopoldville, accompanied by a strong team of his ministers and UN Undersecretary Ralph Bunche.

Father Ruled Negligent In Shooting

COURTENAY (CP)—A coroner's jury ruled Monday that the shooting of an elderly man by an 11-year-old boy was accidental but due to the negligence of an indulgent father.

Jurors were inquiring into the death of Murdoch MacDonald, 70, while he was picking Christmas greenery in the forest near his home not far from here.

The boy said he fired his shotgun at what he thought was a deer and then found the father shot in the back.

The father told the jury he was hunting with his three sons, aged 15, 11 and 6.

He and the oldest boy carried .30-30 calibre rifles and the 11-year-old a shotgun. The youngest boy carried no weapon, the father said.

The jury said the father was negligent in allowing the boy to carry a firearm and recommended that adults who take minors hunting should be responsible for their infractions of the Game Act and subject to penalty.

Continued from Page 1 charter to sanction the use of force when it suited their purposes.

"This can only lead to chaos and disintegration of the United Nations," said Stevenson.

Portugal requested the emergency meeting of the Security Council and Ambassador Vasco Viera Garca charged that the Indian government was making war on the small territories because of a forthcoming Indian election and also because of its border difficulties with Red China.

India's Ambassador C. S. Jha spoke bitterly of remnants of colonialism, and also charged that Portugal was being bolstered in its defence of its Indian territories by arms supplied by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The NATO charge was repeated by other Afro-Asian speakers.

Jha and Zorn repeatedly referred to Portugal's large Angolan territory in Africa, charging that the United States, Britain and other NATO powers were trying to maintain the remnants of Portugal's colonial power at the sacrifice of life.

Britain's Sir Patrick Dean, saying his delegation had been "shocked and dismayed" by the news of India's attack, said like Stevenson he did not wish to discuss the merits of the case between India and Portugal but the use of force could not be condoned under the UN charter.
